

Get a Grip, People

By Anna Von Reitz

All these "mass layoffs" of Federal workers aren't because they tweeted something political and rude about Charlie Kirk's murder.

No, no, no, no.... the reality is that the UNITED STATES, INC. went bankrupt in Chapter VII Involuntary Bankruptcy. All those departments and agencies have to be radically stripped down and realigned and fundamentally changed or dissolved entirely.

Between 145,000 and 160,000 Federal Employees took the Golden Parachute Trump offered and took early retirement or simply moved on to other jobs. As I told you, the smart ones were doing this already in February and March of this year. There has been a steady tidal wave of resignations all year long.

And whole departments and agencies are being gutted. Wholesale. The DOGE Report was de-politicized by Elon Musk stepping back, but the DOGE machine is grinding on.

So what you are seeing isn't political backlash. What you are seeing is forced downsizing of the bloated federal corporatocracy in an effort to keep the remaining more essential functions afloat.

For those who missed my missive this morning, yeah, we are looking at some wickedly radical changes -- but it's okay in the end. For us to have peace and plenty as a country a vast restructuring has to take place, and with that, a new understanding of what matters.

Truth matters. Love matters. Some people in DC forgot that, but they are due for a big reminder.
