- g. Observe TP8 with Tektronix 561 and P6035 probe. Turn Width Controls of M109 to minimum width position. Adjust C134 for negative pulse of approximately 4v amplitude and 10 nanosec width.
- h. Monitor TP7 with Tektronix 543. Check the limits of each width range. Make certain that the ranges overlap each other. If "holes" exist in the width ranges, adjust either R129 or R132, or both. The amount of readjustment required should be slight; if this is not true, check tolerances of timing capacitors.

4.0 OUTPUT AMPLIFIER SECTION

Connect voltage jumpers from power supply to output amplifier. Trigger oscilloscope with sync output of M109.

4.1 Positive Output Amplifier Checkout

- Connect Positive Output of M109 to Tektronix 561 50 $\Omega$  input through 10:1 (20 db) attenuator.
- Set frequency of M109 for 400 kc, width for 50 nanosec, and delay for 50 nanosec. Turn Positive Amplitude Control to maximum clockwise position.
- Adjust R318 for best appearing pulse with amplitude between 10v and 12v.
- Adjust Cp for minimum pulse aberration.
- Check rise and fall times for less than 5 nanosec.
- Adjust M109 for minimum pulse width. Vary frequency from 4 Mc to 40 Mc. Note frequency at which maximum width occurs. Set M109 to this frequency and adjust C134 for pulse width of 10 nanosec.
- Vary Amplitude Control. Amplitude of pulse should decrease to less than 3v before distortion occurs.

4.2 Negative Output Amplifier

- Connect Negative Output of M109 to Tektronix 561 50 $\Omega$  input through 20 db of attenuation.
- Set frequency for 400 kc, width for 50 nanosec, and delay for 50 nanosec. Turn Negative Amplitude Control to maximum clockwise position.
- Adjust R339 for best appearing pulse with amplitude between 10v and 12v.
- Adjust Cn for minimum pulse aberration.
- Check rise and fall times for less than 10 nanosec.
- Adjust M109 for minimum pulse width. Vary frequency from 4 Mc to 40 Mc. Note frequency at which maximum width occurs. Set M109 to this frequency and adjust C331 for 10 nanosec pulse width.
- Vary Amplitude Control. Amplitude of pulse should decrease to less than 3v before distortion occurs.

Welcome to Internet Arcade

903 items

The Internet Arcade is a web-based library of arcade (coin-operated) video games from the 1970s through to the 1990s, emulated in JSMESS, part of the JSMESS software package. Containing hundreds of games ranging through many different genres and styles, the Arcade provides research, comparison, and entertainment in the realm of the Video Game Arcade.

The game collection ranges from early "bronze-age" videogames, with black and white screens and simple sounds, through to large-scale games containing digitized voices, images and music. Most games are playable in some form, although some are useful more for verification of behavior or programming due to the intensity and requirements of their systems.

Many games have a "boot-up" sequence when first turned on, where the systems run through a check and analysis, making sure all systems are go. In some cases, odd controllers make proper playing of the systems on a keyboard or joystick a pale imitation of the original experience. Please report any issues to the Internet Arcade Operator, Jason Scott.

If you are encountering issues with control, sound, or other technical problems, read this entry of some common solutions.

Also, Armchair Arcade (a video game review site) has written an excellent guide to playing on the Internet Arcade as well.

Below are a suggested collection of games that run at proper speed in a powerful browser. (Firefox is currently the fastest environment, although other browsers should work as well.)

Introducing the Archive Corps

Meet the man behind a new effort to save documents and other artifacts before they disappear.

ROSE EVELETH | SEP 1, 2015 | TECHNOLOGY

Jason Scott has something of a reputation. He's a historian who works for the Internet Archive, and he's known in some circles as the guy who can save bits of history right before they disappear.

So when he found out that a small store in Maryland that sold manuals for machinery was going out of business, and was going to get rid of its collection of nearly 200,000 obscure booklets in just a few days, Scott got to work.

He got to Maryland on a Friday to check out the stockpile at Manuals Plus. By Wednesday of the next week he had rallied over 70 volunteers to put together
