

International Public Notice: Damage Control Begins

By Anna Von Reitz

Suddenly, it's "British researchers" bringing this information about Spike Proteins and other rogue proteins coded by the mRNA in the Covid 19 shots forward ----literally years after their American counterparts sounded the alarm:

Let's review:

(1) The genesis and primary research concerning "Covid 19" all took place in Britain and later, via cohorts in America, got passed on to China. (2) American doctors like Dr. Bryan Ardis and Dr. Judy Mikovits immediately sounded the alarm about the renegade proteins before, during, and after the Covid 19 Operation. (3) Now, when the evidence is completely overwhelming, everyone (in the media) believes it when "British researchers" present the same findings.

Why is this old information suddenly credible and inspiring calls for a worldwide moratorium?

This situation demonstrates the gross over-influence that the BBC and Reuter's News Service and the Associated Press have established over media outlets worldwide.

It's because journalists are lazy; they parrot the "newsfeed" coming in off the British-controlled wire services and discount everything else.

Nobody had to buy them off (necessarily). They just had to "feed" them news that they didn't have to work to produce and verify themselves ----and let human nature take its course.

There's a reason they call them "newsfeeds". And a reason that they should be disallowed, if not banned outright.

Powerful business and governmental interests will always commandeer such news feed sources and pollute them with propaganda.

Any journalist worth blowing a bubble in hell should know this, and scan Reuter's and the AP to know what the government-- especially the British Government-- is selling today. No other reason.

Instead, the entire profession (almost) has been seduced into repeating whatever comes in off the AP wire or Reuter's, as if this must be Gospel, and everything else must be "questionable".

The Brits invented the phrase "trusted news sources" and that's the best reason that these "trusted" sources should not be trusted at all.

We have given birth to a generation of rubes, fresh off the turnip truck.

Finally, the British research community has found a backbone and published research confirming what the Americans have been saying for ten years and more prior to the onslaught.

Dr. Judy Mikovits has been blowing the whistle as loud as she could for decades, literally, but nobody listened to her.

Time to ask yourselves why?

The story didn't come over the AP wire. Reuter's didn't carry it either.

These damage control efforts will, as in the above story, try to present the new-old information with a twist. They will assert that this "glitch" has just been discovered. They will push the idea that nobody knew about the damage to our genome in advance.

The British Government knew. The City of London knew. The Inner City of London knew.

We have absolute, incontrovertible proof and admission --- part of which is presented in the video clip below.

It stands as a "crazy" pageant presented at the London Olympics years ago, in which the entire stadium field was taken over by actors wearing costumes as nurses carrying injection syringes and pushing around giant beds and smaller gurneys, with other actors pretending to be patients: complete lunacy having nothing to do with any athletic event.

But everything to do with the pandemic they were planning to unleash on the rest of the world.

Never forget. They did this to their own people, too.
