Material Library

POLYACETAL

Polyacetal is a high-end polymer with technical characteristics and physical properties that are particularly suitable for kitchen cutlery. In contrast to standard plastics, it is highly resistant to wear, impact and acid attacks from food. It can offer a very wide range of colour possibilities.

NATURAL MATERIALS

Most of our natural materials are woods coming from France or abroad. As they are not stabilized or varnished, a careful use is highly recommended. In contact with water, the wood will either expand or retract.

PRESTIGE MATERIALS

The most qualitative and prestigious material for our handles. They can either be natural or synthetic, but require careful usage. Such as natural material, avoid prolonged contact with water.

KRION

Similar to natural stone and made of natural minerals and a small percentage of highly resistant resin, Krion has exclusive characteristics: non-porosity, antibacterial properties, hardness, resistance and durability, low maintenance and easy cleaning.

PAKKAWOOD

Pakkawood is a composite material made from different types of wood impregnated with synthetic resin. It is known for its water resistance and unique hardwood texture.

Care instructions

Perceval knives are all carefully handcrafted in workshops in Thiers. These are top quality knives. To extend their life, please take the following precautions when using them.

Please note first, that :

Polyacetal, Krion and Pakkawood knives are dishwasher safe

Natural and Prestige materials are not dishwasher safe.

- Perceval knives can be cleaned with warm soapy water and a sponge (without a scraper).
- Never use abrasive pads, as they create deep scratches and roughen the blades.
- Rinsing with clear, warm water before wiping and careful storage will ensure that your knives last longer.
- Knives are sharpened with a sharpening steel or a sharpening stone.
- Non-professionals are advised not to use a grinder.
